Who are Mandatory Reporters?

Specifically, the Victorian professionals mandated to report are:

- Legally qualified medical practitioners, registered nurses and members of the Victorian police force;
- Primary school and secondary school teachers and principals.

(together referred to as Mandatory Reporters).

While non-teaching members of staff who are not Mandatory Reporters are not mandated legally to report Notifiable Abuse, they should still follow the processes set out in this policy.

When & who to?

A Mandated Reporter must report to the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) (Child Protection Services), when in the course of their professional duty:

- (they) form the belief on reasonable grounds that a child is in need of protection because the child has suffered, or is likely to suffer, significant harm as a result of physical injury and the child's Parents/Guardians have not protected, or are unlikely to protect the child from harm; or
- the child has suffered, or is likely to suffer, significant harm as a result of sexual abuse and the child's Parents/Guardians have not protected, or are unlikely to protect the child from harm.

(together referred to as Notifiable Abuse)

A Mandated Reporter should make a report on each occasion that they form a reasonable belief of Notifiable Abuse without delay and even if the Principal, another Teacher or other Mandatory Reporters do not share that belief.

Mandatory Reporters are required to ensure that a report has been made in instances where another mandated reporter has undertaken to make the report.

If you are a Mandatory Reporter, failure to report Notifiable Abuse, when you have reasonable grounds, is an offence under the Mandatory Reporting amendment to the Children and Young Persons Act.

What is a 'reasonable belief'?

A 'reasonable belief' or a 'belief on reasonable grounds' is not the same as having proof but is more than mere rumour or speculation.

A 'reasonable belief' is formed if a reasonable person in the same position would have formed the belief on the same grounds. For example, a 'reasonable belief' might be formed if:

- a child states that they have been physically or sexually abused
- a child states that they know someone who has been physically or sexually abused (sometimes the child may be talking about themselves)
- someone who knows a child states that the child has been physically or sexually abused

- professional observations of the child’s behaviour or development leads a professional to form a belief that the child has been physically or sexually abused or is likely to be abused
- signs of abuse lead to a belief that the child has been physically or sexually abused.

Who to report to?

Any Mandated Reporter or other member of staff who believes on reasonable grounds that a child or young person is in need of protection from Notifiable Abuse must report their concerns to Department of Human Services (DHS) Child Protection as soon as practicable.

If staff have significant concerns for the wellbeing of a child or young person they are encouraged to report their concerns to DHHS Child Protection or Child FIRST (see accompanying documentation: Step-by-step Guide to Making a Report to Child Protection or Child FIRST).

In cases where staff have concerns about a child or young person, they should discuss their concerns with the Principal.
